What translations will be available for user documentation from ALMA?

John Hibbard - 2020-09-21 - Resources & Observer Support

The official language of the ALMA project is English, and documentation for all the major user software subsystems will be made available in English. Some materials are translated into Japanese by East Asian ARC. You can find them at web page of EAARC.

If users wish other translations, we recommend using web-based translation tools such as babelfish or google. There are also native speakers of several languages amongst the various European ARC nodes who may be able to help with specific questions. To ask for language assistance please submit a ticket to the ALMA Helpdesk.